Engineering

From designing new technology to managing minerals, water and energy in more sustainable ways, engineers and energy professionals are shaping our world. As a Murdoch graduate, you'll combine the skills you learn in maths, technology and science with creative thinking and problem-solving to develop solutions for a better world.

Our graduates have gone on to design one of Australia's most iconic wind farms, used natural resources like lithium to change the way we use energy, and recycled industrial waste to make plastic for medical use. If you love bringing complicated ideas to life, exploring how things work, improving processes or simply imagining what's possible, a Murdoch engineering degree can set you up for a career doing just that.

Murdoch is the only university in Western Australia to offer Veterinary Science. You'll train in an on-campus farm, veterinary hospital, equine centre and our high-tech teaching surgery.

If you're studying marine science or marine biology, you could learn at our Tropical Marine Research Centre on the Ningaloo Reef.

As part of the next generation of scientists, you'll be integral to solving the world's biggest sustainability and social wellbeing challenges. In fact, many of Murdoch's students and researchers are already helping to change the world, by working on breakthroughs like developing genetic therapies to treat motor neuron disease, recovering a threatened species and even genetically engineering a better barley crop, meaning we can brew better beer – cheers!

Whether you want to help sick or injured people or animals, solve crimes using forensic investigation, find new solutions to environmental issues or simply push the boundaries of what's possible, a degree in science can turn your scientific thinking into scientific breakthroughs. Science will impact every job, industry and country in the world, so what scientific discoveries will your thinking lead to?

Teaching

Whether you want to be an innovative educator, empower change or shape our future generations to think for themselves, a degree from Murdoch can turn your passion for teaching into a career.

As a teacher, you have the opportunity to influence a whole generation of thinkers. Will you help to create new leaders and decision-makers, or support a student while they forge their own path, whatever that may be? Or perhaps you'll channel your passion for sport, maths, language or science and teach others to do the same?

As a teaching student at Murdoch, you'll learn to become a resilient and confident teacher, who makes an impact locally and within the global community.

“Currently I am working at the International School of Western Australia as the lead Secondary Health and Physical Education Teacher. Since starting I have received multiple promotions including becoming the Head of Sport and Co-Curricular Coordinator on top of my teaching load.

Murdoch has been able to assist me in starting my own career, giving authentic learning experiences both at university and in a variety of different classrooms. I was able to teach at the British International School in Phuket, which gave the required experience for my current position.

The teaching staff within the Education department at Murdoch have not only mentored me to become a teacher, but with their passion for Education, also showed me why passionate teachers make all the difference in a child's educational experience.”

Your Murdoch Study Abroad and Exchange experience

Francis Jude Zobitz III, USA Study Abroad, Semester 2 2018

Perth truly is a hidden gem waiting to be discovered. The people are wonderful, the environment is clean, the food is unbelievable and the beaches are pristine.

At Murdoch, I loved the openness of the campus and the community that came along with it. Whether you are studying in the library, grabbing 'brekky' (breakfast) in the Student Hub, or enjoying a refreshment at the Tavern, it creates a great sense of belonging.

I have thoroughly enjoyed my time at Murdoch, more specifically, learning about other's cultures and the history of Australia. Australia is a more diverse country than advertised, which contributes to what makes the country so great.

If you are thinking of coming to Murdoch for Study Abroad or Exchange, all I can say is take advantage of every opportunity available to you, because it goes by way faster than you think!
